Operational Research (OR) is the science of making better decisions.

You'll be the one to decide if Heathrow can fit another runway, how many new doctors will be needed by the NHS or which footballer should be recruited by your favourite Premier League team. And the world will thank you.

Ask The Operational Research Society how you can choose a career solving everyday problems with your maths or science degree.

Want to know more?

The OR Society is the membership body of the OR community and offers support for your OR education and career.
